1928 CROWD IS LARGEST

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT CONTESTS AT COLLEGE.

GIVE WINNERS TONIGHT

Sports and Music Events Most Popular—Bands, Orchestras and Chorus at 8 p. m.

TONIGHT

at 8 o'clock.

Three Class A orchestras will play—Maryville, Bethany and Mound City.

Two Class A bands will play—Bethany and Mound City.

Two Class A choruses will sing—Maryville and Bethany.

Announcement of winners in contests held today will be made.

A record crowd is attending today's contests for Northwest Missouri High Schools.

Large crowds attended the music contests this morning. The music and sports events are the most popular. Many of the other contests have less than 50 per cent of last year's number of entries, but the total number of contestants is greater than last year.

Orchestras, bands and choruses will give the program tonight in the auditorium at the College. Those high schools taking part will be Maryville, Mound City and Bethany.

Mound City a Favorite.

Mound City, by virtue of victories last year, probably will be the favorite to win a large share of the Class A contests tonight, just as the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates were picked by the experts to win the major league baseball championships this year.

But Mound City will have some competition, because Bethany, with an enviable record in years past, is back with a full contingent of talented youngsters. And J. M. Dillinger, formerly the music supervisor at Bethany, is here with a boys' quartet and boys' glee club from Chillicothe.

And Maryville can't be counted out. Not without a vigorous toot or two. In years past the Maryville organizations, directed by H. O. Hickernell, have not been eligible to compete for the awards, but they have taken part and always have ranked high. This year they have been put on the same basis as those of other schools, and the thrill of competition may cause them to ascend to new heights.

The Mound City musical organizations, under the tutelage of L. P. Thumre, consist this year of band, orchestra, girls' glee club and boys' quartet.

Stronger Than Last Year.

Both the band and orchestra have thirty-six members, the limit in each. "Although twelve members were lost by graduation, both organizations are as strong as, and in many respects stronger than, they were last year," Mr. Thumre announced. "They are playing heavier numbers."

In one respect, at least, the Mound City musicians are sure to rank high. That will be in appearance. Both the

Verdict for $2,000 in Harrison County Case

Jury Finds Against State Highway Commission—New Trial Asked in Bean Case.

A jury in circuit court this afternoon returned a verdict for $2,000 damages in favor of Martha H. Gish, et al., against the State Highway Commission. The case went to the jury at 11 o'clock this morning and the jury reported its verdict about 1:30 this afternoon.

The case came here in a change of venue from Harrison County. It was for $5,000 damages, the plaintiffs alleging the state highway department took a right-of-way on highway No. 69, near Eagleville, diagonally through a 190-acre tract without permission of the owners. The verdict was signed by nine jurors.

After the verdict in this case, the petit jury was excused until Monday morning by Judge Dawson.

Other proceedings in court were:

A motion for a new trial was filed in the case of Wilbur E. Bean vs. the Interstate Stage Line Co., Buchanan county, resulting in a verdict for the plaintiff for $1,250.

Bert Foster, et al., vs. Byron Engle, et al. receivership and partition. J. W. McKnight was appointed referee, and L. B. Campbell receiver to take charge of the lands and collect rents.

Howard E. Humphrey vs. Denella E. Humphrey, petition for divorce was filed. The petition states the couple were married in St. Joseph in February, 1925, and lived together until June, 1927. Indignities are alleged.

William C. Aldrich vs. Chester A. Carter, judgment for the plaintiff for $389.10 at 8 per cent interest as per form filed.

Pupils of Maryville Girl Win in Contest

Music students of Leadwood high school, Leadwood, Mo., directed by Miss Hettie Mae Woodward, won second place in the annual St. Francois county music contest, held at Farmington, according to word received here by Miss Woodward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Woodward.

Competing schools were Farmington, Flat River, Elvins, Desloge, Esther and Leadwood.

This was Miss Woodward's first year as supervisor of public school music at Leadwood. She has been re-elected for next year at an increased salary.

FIRST AWARDS TO MARYVILLE

LOCAL SCHOOL WINS MOST OF OPENING DAY CONTESTS.

LEADS IN DRAMATICS

Play, "Ashes of Roses," Ranked Above Other Good Productions by Hamilton and Trenton.

Maryville high school reaped the greatest harvest in yesterday's contests at the State Teachers College, winning seven first awards, and one honorable mention, aside from the grain judging contests in which checking has not yet been completed.

In the contest in dramatics presentation, held at 8 o'clock last night, Maryville, despite a handicap, won first with "Ashes of Roses." Hamilton won second in this event, giving an attractive dramatization of "Dolls," and Trenton was third.

Maryville had the only entry in tableau, presenting "His First Step" at the night performance.

Other contests in which Maryville won were: Poster, won by Jimmie Jackson.

Representation, William Stillwell.

Design Applied to Craft Work, won by Eleanor Nicholas.

Costume Design, won by Maud Qualls.

In the poster contest, Harold Knox, second Maryville entry, and Lee Dunham, Maryville entry, were given honorable mention.

Awards in Woodwork.

Excelsior Springs in Class A, and Jamesport in Class B were the winners of the woodwork contest. A sewing cabinet won for Hadley White of Excelsior Springs and a bench for the Jamesport entry, whose name was not given.

Second awards in this department went to the College high school here, for a book rack made by Miss Helen Holt, in Class A, and to a Jamesport entry in Class B.

Clun M. Price of Maryville Judged the Woodwork Contests.

Miss Alice Ray Johnson, Horner Institute of Fine Arts, Kansas City, judged the dramatic numbers, and Elizabeth Cook Bunker, former art supervisor of Omaha public schools, judged the art contests.

Appreciation of last night's program was evidenced by the capacity crowd attending the first night performance. The doors were closed soon after 8 o'clock, and many persons were turned away from the College auditorium.

All Plays Good.

All three of the plays were good and it was a difficult piece of judging to decide among them, the judge said afterward. The play by Hamilton, "Dolls," was delightfully costumed and the girls who played the parts of various dolls did them cleverly.

The Trenton cast succeeded in carrying to the audience an impression of

Sigler and Jones Form Partnership

New Legal Firm Is Announced Today by Young Attorneys.—Take Deed of Office.

Phares O. Sigler and P. R. Jones have formed a partnership for the general practice of law, with offices in the Michau building which were formerly occupied by W. N. Deatherage, it was announced today. Mr. Sigler, who has been a member of the firm of Shinabargar, Blagg & Sigler for the past year, has withdrawn his connection with that firm.

Mr. Sigler located in Maryville about a year ago, taking the place in the firm of George Robb Ellison, who was appointed supreme court commissioner. He is a graduate of Northwestern University law school, was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1922 and practiced law for five years in Decatur, Ill. He was admitted to the Missouri bar in 1927.

Mr. Jones, formerly assistant coach at the State Teachers College here, was admitted to the Missouri bar last year. He is a graduate of the law school of Kansas University, being in the class of 1922, and was admitted that year to the Kansas Bar. He practiced law for two years in Council Grove, Kan.

CAN'T TREBLE CULP ESTATE

NO PENALTY AFTER DEATH, ATTORNEY-GENERAL SAYS.

TO TAKE OFF $512,400

Property, However, Can Be Assessed This Year at Full Value of $210,911.13, Is Ruling.

The 1927 assessed valuation of personal property in Nodaway county will be reduced $542,400 as the result of a ruling of North T. Gentry, attorney general of Missouri. This was indicated today when Fred Wright, county clerk, received a communication from L. D. Thompson, state auditor, which gave an opinion of Mr. Gentry concerning the trebling of the assessed valuation of a taxpayer after death.

An opinion had been sought by the county board of appeals relative to the trebling of the assessment of the personal property of the E. C. Culp estate by the county board of equalization.

Mr. Thompson, explaining Mr. Gentry's decision, said, "He (Mr. Gentry) holds that the board of equalization has no power to penalize a deceased person, but as I understand the law, you can this year assess this property for full value."

Reported at $30,000.

Culp, who died last November, reported his personal property at $30,000. An appraisal of his estate, filed with the probate court, listed his personal estate at $210,911.13. When the board of equalization met early this month Mr. Culp's estate was trebled by deducting $30,000 from the $210,911.13, multiplying by three and then adding the $30,000, acting on the theory that the estate could be penalized because of failure to report a true assessment, as provided by law in the case of living persons.

When the board of appeals met Monday, J. B. Robinson, administrator of the estate, and T. A. Cummins, attorney, contested the right of the board of equalization to treble the assessment of the Culp estate and an opinion from the attorney general was sought.

Mr. Gentry's letter to Mr. Thompson, which was forwarded to Mr. Wright, is as follows:

"I am in receipt of your letter of this date (April 25) in which you enclose a letter from Mr. Fred Wright, in which he states that a party made a false return of personal property for taxation, that thereafter this party died and the county board of equalization ascertained the falsity of such return and trebled the assessment, attempting to act under Section 1277 R. S. Mo., 1919. You wish to know if the county board of equalization has this power in view of the death of the taxpayer prior to the trebling of the assessment."

Can't Penalize Deceased.

"I am of the opinion that the county board of equalization does not possess this power in view of the death of this party, the county board of equalization having no power to penalize the deceased person."

"State ex rel Ward vs. Atchison 173 No. 164."

"Very sincerely yours,"

"North T. Gentry,"

"Attorney General."

The county board of appeals will be in session tomorrow and probably will act on the suggestion of Mr. Thompson, that of fixing the assessment of the Culp estate personal property at the true value, $210,911.13, as filed by a board of appraisers.

Attorney Cummins, representing the administrator of the Culp estate, also received a copy of Attorney-General Gentry's opinion, sustaining the opinion Mr. Cummins held in the case.

Mr. Cummins said that a similar case went up from Clinton county several years ago to the Supreme court of the state, and that Judge Brace wrote an opinion holding the estate of a taxpayer cannot be trebled after the person is dead.

VIOLIN MADE FROM AN OLD MAPLE BOARD

W. E. Westfall Fashions Instrument From Wood Salvaged From House Built in 1858.

A violin has been made from a maple board taken from a house which was built here in 1858. The instrument was made by W. E. Westfall, 1322 East First street, who was in the Democrat-Forum office recently, showing his handiwork. The board was taken from the Dr. C. D. Koch house which was torn down several years ago and rebuilt.

Mr. Westfall, who is a carpenter, has a hobby, as most persons have, and he spends his odd moments making violins. Just recently he sold a piece of his work for $50. He has been making violins for the last quarter of a century.

Recently Mr. Westfall received an old violin from a man in Wichita, Kan., to work over because the instrument had lost its tone. This instrument has the date of 1732 stamped on it.

MADDEN DIES IN HIS OFFICE

ILLINOIS REPRESENTATIVE HEAD-ED APPROPRIATIONS COM.

SERVED FOR 22 YEARS

Veteran Republican Leader Was Native of England.—Succumbs to Hardening of Arteries.

Washington, April 27.—Representative Madden, chairman of the House appropriations committee, dropped dead in his office today.

Madden had served in Congress continuously for 22 years as the Republican Representative from the First Illinois district, Chicago. He was first elected to the 59th Congress.

Madden was 75 years old. His majestic white head was a "landmark" in the House for years.

Martin Barnaby Madden was born in Darlington, England, March 20, 1855. He went to work at the age of 10, in the stone business.

Madden's death was due to Angina Pectoris, hardening of the arteries, it was said by Representative Sirovich, of New York, a physician, who was called in after the veteran legislator collapsed.

Lowell L. Livengood Enters Legal Firm

Young Attorney Joins Shinabargar and Blagg, and Won't Run for Prosecutor.

Lowell L. Livengood has become a member of the law firm of Shinabargar, Blagg & Livengood, taking the place of Phares O. Sigler, who withdrew from the firm to become associated with P. R. Jones, it was announced today by that firm.

With Mr. Livengood's announcement, it was stated Mr. Livengood would not seek the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney. Mr. Livengood had been mentioned frequently for this office, since he made a creditable race for the office two years ago.

Mr. Livengood is a graduate of the Elmo high school, served two terms as principal of the King City high school, and after receiving his B. S. degree from the State Teachers College in 1920 was made superintendent of the Elmo high school and held this position for seven years. He also attended the University of Missouri, where he was enrolled as a graduate student. He then completed the three year law course given by the American University of Los Angeles, and later, in 1926, successfully passed the state bar examination and was admitted to practice in all the courts of the state.

The other two members of the firm are J. S. Shinabargar and W. A. Blagg, who have been associated together for a number of years.

HERO BURIAL FOR BENNETT

AIR MARTYR'S BODY IS INTERRED AT ARLINGTON.

REGULATIONS LIFTED

Hundreds, Both at Washington and New York, Bare Heads as Cortege Passes.

Washington, April 27.—The body of Floyd Bennett, sacrifice to the code of air comradeship—reached here from Quebec at 3:20 p. m. today.

In a flag-draped casket, Bennett's body was brought to the national capital for burial among the hero dead of Arlington, overlooking the Potomac river.

Meantime, the German-Irish fliers of the Bremen, in aid of whom Bennett contracted his fatal illness, broke their air journey from Canada to this country at Curtiss Field, New York, and determined at the last moment to defer their programmed homage to the man who sacrificed himself to free them from icy Greenly Island.

To Grave Tomorrow.

The German-Irish crew will arrive tonight and tomorrow visit his grave to say the "Gruesse" they had intended to give him, alive, at Greenly.

In heavy rain, hundreds at the station and other hundreds along the thoroughfares to Arlington Cemetery stood with bowed heads to pay their silent honor to Bennett, who after flying his Ford plane from Detroit to Lake St. Agnes, Que., contracted pneumonia which resulted fatally.

The navy he had served as an humble "non-com" lifted its regulations; that he might be buried with officer dead on the Virginia hills across the river from Washington.

Motors Hum a Requiem.

The body was taken through the union station concourse through lines of police at attention, while hundreds bared their heads. Passing out across the plaza, the funeral procession, under escort of police, petty officers and navy lieutenants, passed through historic Pennsylvania Avenue.

Three army and three navy planes left Bolling and Anacostia Fields simultaneously with arrival of the funeral train, and despite a downpour, headed for Arlington to circle over the grave prepared for the flier.

Their motors' hum sounded an aviator's requiem.

Six Nations in Homage.

New York, Apr. 27.—Six nations united in a common bond of homage to a gallant American aviator today when the body of Floyd Bennett lay in state at the 17th Regiment armory for an hour and a half before being taken on to Washington for burial among the nation's honored dead in Arlington cemetery.

Flags of the United States, Germany, Great Britain, France, Canada, and Ireland, which had been raised to honor the German-Irish crew of the transatlantic airplane Bremen, were dipped in salute when Bennett's body arrived from Quebec.

In the brief hour that Bennett's body lay in state at the armory countless thousands of representatives of all countries passed by the bier. Then the doors were closed while his mother, his widow and other close relatives and associates of Bennett knelt in silent prayer beside the casket.

Funeral Tomorrow for Martin Burch

Plane Is Refused to German Aviatix

Detroit, Mich., April 27.—The Stinson Aircraft Corporation has returned to Thea Rasche, German aviatix, a check for $3,000 which she proffered as the first payment on a monoplane in which she hoped to fly the Atlantic. Officials of the corporation said today it was their policy to discourage "suicidal" flights.

Give Up Attempt to Rush Jones-Reid Bill

Washington, Apr. 27.—Senate leaders today abandoned efforts to rush the Jones-Reid flood control bill through the Senate and decided to send it to conference.

Leaders were unable to get unanimous agreement for adoption in the Senate of amendments which the House made to the measure.

Holds Cashier Two Hours; Gets $110

Lone Bandit Keeps Rockridge Banker Before Gun Until Time Clock Vault Opens.

Springfield, Mo., Apr. 27.—Holding T. J. Edwards, cashier, at the point of a gun from 6 until 8 o'clock this morning when the time clock opened the vault, a lone bandit was rewarded with only $110 from the bank of Rockridge, 25 miles southeast of here. When the bandit fled Edwards fired four shots, one of which was believed to have taken effect.

HYDE NOT TO ENTER RACE

FORMER GOVERNOR REFUSES TO RUN FOR SENATE.

HIS DECISION FINAL

Views on Liquor Question Not in Accord With Those of Many Party Leaders, He Says.

Kansas City, Mo., April 27.—Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri, today announced that he will not seek the Republican nomination for United States Senator. He said he arrived at his decision regretfully, but with finality.

Hyde issued a statement which he termed his "swan song" and which sets forth his reasons for declining to make the race.

Simultaneously with Hyde's statement came word from St. Louis that James A. Finch of New Madrid, Lowden manager in Missouri, also had eliminated himself from the senatorial race. Political leaders had predicted that if Hyde refused to run, his place would be taken by Finch.

Hyde's statement follows:

"I have determined not to seek the Republican nomination for senator."

Won't Change "Dry" Stand.

"This decision is announced regretfully, but with finality. It is not a small thing to disappoint the friends who have advised me, and offered their support. I hold myself under lasting obligation to them."

"I have deliberated, perhaps overlong, on the question. My obligations to my business associates are such as to seriously influence my decision."

"On the political side, it is only frankness to say that my views upon the liquor question do not agree with those of many of my party associates. Many wet leaders have offered to support me, but have suggested that a change in my views would better suit the sentiment of their constituents. I cannot change my views. In my observation the most miserable of men is the candidate who professes a faith which he does not believe. The senatorship is not worth such a price."

Straddling "Abhorrent."

"Straddling is equally abhorrent. It differs from the expression of sincere views only in that it attempts to deceive more people. Of course, it would be possible to run upon a frank statement of my views. Up to this minute I have considered doing so. Such a course, however, probably would split the Republican party. I owe the party too heavy a debt of gratitude to accept such a responsibility."

Finch Won't Run, Either.

St. Louis, Mo., April 27.—James A. Finch, New Madrid, told the United Press here today, "I am not going to run for the Republican nomination for United States Senator."

The announcement of the Lowden presidential campaign manager for Missouri was accompanied by the additional remark:

"Unless I am very much mistaken, Arthur M. Hyde has just announced his candidacy for the same post at Kansas City."

Hyde, former governor of Missouri, however, declined to make the race at virtually the same hour that Finch declined.

Finch said that the expense involved was the main reason he declined to enter the race.

Tax Reduction Bill to Be Up Thursday

$295,000,000 Measure Nearly Ready For Senate, Chairman Smoot Announces Today.

Washington, April 27.—The $295,000,000 tax reduction bill agreed upon by the Senate finance committee in favor of the $289,000,000 measure passed by the House will be reported to the Senate next Tuesday and brought up for action Thursday, Chairman Smoot of the committee announced today.

The committee considered minor features at today's session and will be ready for a final vote Monday, Smoot said. All the important features were voted upon yesterday and the final ballot will be only a formality.

FLYERS TO NEW YORK

BREMEN'S CREW STOPS AT CURTISS FIELD.

TO GO ON TOMORROW

Bad Weather Stops Pilgrimage to Washington to Pay Homage to Floyd Bennett.

Curtiss Field, L. I., Apr. 27.—The crew of the transatlantic monoplane Bremen will continue their trip to Washington by train, Miss Herta Junkers announced today after she and the German-Irish fliers had landed here from Murray Bay.

The Ford relief plane which came down from the North landed unexpectedly at Curtiss Field at 1:51 p. m.

Miss Junkers said it would be impossible to continue the trip by plane because of the bad weather.

"All arrangements have been made and we are ready to leave at once," said Miss Junkers.

Rain and Poor Visibility.

It rained hard at Curtiss Field and Major John Reynolds, commander of Mitchell Field, said poor visibility prevailed along the entire air route between here and Washington.

The fliers had hoped to arrive in the capital in time for the Floyd Bennett funeral, scheduled for 5 p. m.

Two weeks from the day they were forced down on Greenly Island after completing the first flight across the North Atlantic in an airplane, the crew of the monoplane Bremen reached their original goal.

Only about 100 persons were at the field when the plane landed. They broke the rope lines and rushed to the plane.

Berni Balchen, pilot, was forced to shut off the three motors to avoid injuring spectators.

The crowd grew rapidly and Baron von Huenefeld and the other passengers in the plane were hemmed in and forced back against the side of the ship.

FRESH AIR CAMPS.

The fresh air camp season is coming on apace, when welfare agencies or private humanitarian enterprises send hundreds of slum-dwelling city children to farm or camp for a brief respite from dirt, foul air, over-crowding, traffic dangers and killing heat.

The skeptical may ask what good two or three weeks out of a year can do. An agency in one city answers with definite figures. Last summer it sent 256 children from city street to country camps. Those youngsters gained a total of 2,673.75 pounds in weight—around 10 pounds apiece.

The gain in weight isn't all. At such camps the children are given simple instruction in cleanliness, the simplest health rules, fair play, co-operation, self-reliance. They acquire an amazing lot of useful ideas. And best of all, they have some real fun and get a taste for woods and fields and streams.

Anyone who has an opportunity to contribute toward the support of such an enterprise, anywhere, is dull and blind if he does not respond wholeheartedly.

THE DOUGHBOYS' RADIO.

"Join the Army and have free radio service" ought to be made one of Uncle Sam's recruiting slogans. This free service is known as the "Apronstring Net" because so many of the messages sent by it are to mothers and sweethearts. Sending stations are located at Honolulu and Manila.

The Apronstring is strictly a doughboy enterprise. The government has its own communication system for official messages. In their time off-duty, however, signal corps men have built their own outfit out of salvaged parts and materials. It is operated by volunteers during their off-duty hours. It doesn't interfere with the government's radiograms. All that the doughboys have to pay for is the cost of forwarding their messages by wire or through the mail after they have been received at San Francisco.

Apparently the Apronstring wireless is thoroughly popular. It averages 100 radiograms a day. It is a great boon to the boys who hate to write letters and find it snappier and much more fun to send their messages in this easy way. But we'll wager they still want long, newsy letters when they hear from home.

AIR SUPREMACY.

The belief that America is behind Europe in Commercial aviation is false, says an airplane man. He has figures to back his statement. He finds a present daily average of 25,870 miles flown by commercial planes in this country, compared with only 25,000 miles in all Europe.

Evidently those who talk of European supremacy in this respect trust to superficial impressions rather than accurate data. They find unexpectedly good air service in a few important cities, and imagine the continent is all like that. American flying is spread out and scattered, so that its extent is hard to realize.

FRIENDS IN AVIATION.

German, Irish, Canadian, French-Canadian—these are the nationalities represented on that bleak little Greenland Island, in the aviators who were the first to fly safely from Europe to America and the others who went at once to their help.

Ten years ago some of the flyers involved in this latest great aviation adventure were "aces" and their countries were enemies.

Isn't it vastly more thrilling and more useful to have these men engaged as they now are in international co-operation and promotion of aviation than as some of them were a decade ago?

BARRS.

George Remus, Cincinnati bootleg king, who killed his wife last fall and was found insane by a jury, has been found sane now and wants his liberty. Why all the delay?

A farmer owns a stone wall on the edge of Baldonnel airfield in Ireland. He has to tear this wall down every time a transatlantic plane hops off, and for this he collects 70 pounds sterling, rebuilding the wall as soon as the flyers have gone. Remember the mud-puddle in front of the farmer's house?

MARINES IN AN ADVANCEU. S. FORCES IN NICARAGUA SEEK TO CUT OFF REBELS.

RECONNOITER BY AIR

New Records Established by Fliers
Over Dangerous Territory.—
Sandino Not Seen.

Managua, Nicaragua, April 27.—Large detachments of United States marines were reported to be advancing today in forced marches on the Pispis mining district in an effort to block retreat of General Augustino Sandino's rebel army.

No announcements have been made of the marine advance at base headquarters here but it was believed generally that efforts were being made to place marines in strategic positions to block any escape of the Sandinistas.

Activity Follows Raids. Raids by the Sandino army on the Pispis mining area, which resulted in occupation of several mines and capture of George R. Marshall of New York, have resulted in intensive marine activity.

The big observation planes that have been held at the base here have been particularly active.

In record scouting trips the planes have reconnoitered every bit of ground in the Pispis area and in some instances the plans, many of which are worn by constant use, have established new service records for continued flying.

The planes had to leave the air-drome here, soar over treacherous territory, including swamp lands and mountain ranges, and fly approximately 400 miles to the Pispis area. There was no adequate place to land in case some mechanical mishap should befall the planes.

Occasionally the marine planes returned to the base with only a few drops of gasoline left in their tanks.

Rebels Not Sighted. The fact that none of the scouting planes reported sighting Sandino or any of his followers led to the belief the wily general may have withdrawn from the Pispis area. This, however, did not deter the marine march on the district.

Reports that Sandino planned to march on Puerto Cabezas with a large force generally were discredited at the base here.

Fresh reports coming into Managua said that Marshall was being well treated by the rebels. He was the only man captured when the Sandino forces took over the mines.

There was a totally unconfirmed report that Marshall had been wounded but was being well treated by the Sandino medical advisers.

The Campaign Log

THE CAMPAIGN LOG.

APRIL 27

By United Press

Huntington, W. V., newspapers today said they had been reliably informed that Secretary of Commerce Hoover would enter the primaries in that state against Senator Guy F. Goff, the native son candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

The workers (communist) party announced a national convention in New York on May 25 at which candidates for president and vice-president will be chosen.

Former Governor Allen of Kansas in a speech in New York said the trend of primaries indicated that Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Governor Smith would be the presidential nominees of the two major parties and that Hoover would win the election easily. Allen said he made the statement with all respect to Senator Curtis of Kansas, who has the endorsement of the Kansas delegation.

The Hawaiian Island delegation to the Democratic national convention was instructed to vote for Governor Al Smith at the island party convention yesterday.

NEARING END
OF OIL PROBEHARRY F. SINCLAIR MAY BE THE LAST WITNESS.

BEGIN ANOTHER SOON

A Salt Creek Investigation Authorized
—Stewart Testimony to U. S.
Attorney.

Washington, April 27.—The sensational Teapot Dome oil investigation probably will be brought to a close next Tuesday, when Harry F. Sinclair is brought to the stand, Senator Walsh of Montana announced today.

"It seems to me we are approaching the end but we will not know what course to pursue until after Sinclair testifies," Walsh told the United Press.

No other witnesses are being called and there is no present intention of calling any unless Sinclair's testimony required further checking. Up to this time the committee had expected to call Will Hays, former chairman of the Republican national committee; Charles D. Hilles, New York Republican leader and others before closing.

The decision to end the oil hearings was reached after the Senate had sent to United States Attorney Rover the testimony of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana with a recommendation that it be presented to the grand jury if perjury proceedings appear warranted.

Stewart testified February 1 that he knew nothing about any Continental Trading Company bonds and then on April 24, after Sinclair had been acquitted, he admitted that he had handled $759,500 in a trusteeship.

The record of the testimony was sent to Rover this morning by the Secretary of the Senate.

Action is expected in the Senate before the end of the week authorizing the Teapot Dome committee to investigate leases in the Salt Creek fields. The audit and control committee has authorized expenditure of $200,000 for this inquiry. The Teapot Dome committee now is considering some amendments to the original Norris resolution to expand scope of the investigation.

The Salt Creek investigation, however, will necessitate a lot of preliminary legal work by committee employees and hearings may not be begun before Congress adjourns in June.

Lowden Had to Fight
Poverty as a Boy

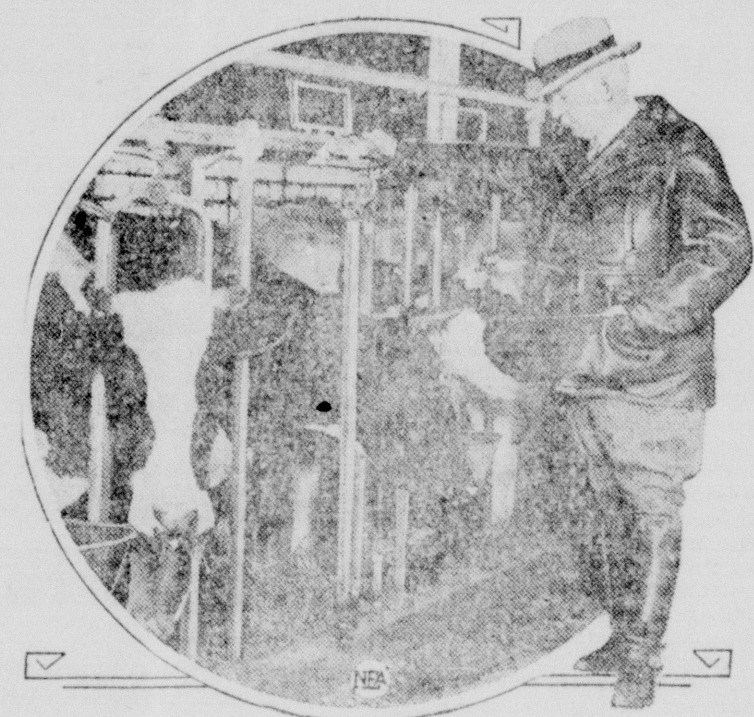

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the seventeenth in the series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for Democrat-Forum and Maryville Tribune and NEA Service by Robert Talley, is the second of three articles dealing with the career of ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden. The final article will appear tomorrow.

By ROBERT TALLEY

Washington, April 27.—There is all the "typically American color" that a novelist might desire in the story of Frank O. Lowden, now a candidate for there was absent from home with other men, patrolling the surrounding forests to prevent a possible Indian surprise. My mother, not daring to leave me in the house for fear of the Indians, took me with her to the pasture at milking time.

Hard times came upon Minnesota in the sixties. When Frank was barely seven years old, Lorenzo Lowden loaded his family into a covered wagon and headed south in quest of more inviting fields. At Pleasant Point, in Hardin the presidency.

Back in 1838 his father, Lorenzo Lowden, migrated from Pennsylvania to Minnesota, following close behind the Indian and the Buffalo. Lorenzo Lowden, a farmer and a blacksmith, settled at the little village of Sunrise, Minn., and there on Jan. 26, 1861, Frank O. Lowden was born.

"I was raised on a farm, a pioneer farm," Lowden once told an audience. "There were common hardships to endure, common dangers to face."

"During those early days there was once a very formidable uprising of the Sioux Indians of Minnesota. My fa-county, Iowa, the blacksmith halted and decided to locate.

Rarefooted, the boy plodded beside the wagon, helping his father drive the oxen.

After boyhood upon the farm and in the blacksmith shop, Frank Lowden "worked his way" through Iowa State University, working as a farm laborer in summer. When he graduated in 1885 it was as class valedictorian.

Lowden taught school for a time and then Chicago and a law career beckoned to him. He went there, got a job as clerk in a law firm, worked in the office by day and studied law in a night school. He specialized in business law and succeeded.

His fame as a lawyer especially in dealing with intricate business litigation, began to spread.

In 1898, Lowden—then a prosperous attorney—married. He met Miss Florence Pullman, who had been wooed unsuccessfully by European royalty, aboard ship when returning from a trip to London.

It is related that when Lowden asked George M. Pullman for his daughter's hand in marriage the aged sleeping car Croesus eyed him quizzically and asked him how much his income was. Lowden named the figure.

"My boy," Pullman smiled, "that isn't enough to buy violets for Florence!" Nevertheless, they were married and, like the couples in the story books, they have "lived happily ever after." They have four children—three daughters, Florence, Harriett and Frances, and one son, Pullman.

About the time of his marriage, Lowden began to acquire the first parts of his now famous Sinissippi farm, his 5,000-acre tract near Oregon, Ill., on which he resides. The farm is famous as a model of efficient agricultural and livestock methods.

In 1896, the law partnership of Lowden, Eastbrook & Davis was formed and rapidly became one of the best known firms in the middle west. It specialized on business law.

In 1900, Lowden tried his hand at politics but was defeated for governor by the Yates-Deneen forces, Deneen being nominated. In 1906 he was elected to Congress to fill the unexpired term of a member who had died. He continued there until 1913, when he voluntarily retired.

In 1916 he was elected governor of Illinois and served four years.

During his early years of residence in Chicago, Lowden met another young lawyer who had come to Chicago to seek his fortune. Both prospered, both gained fame and a fast friendship that endures until this day grew up between them.

That man was Charles G. Dawes, now vice-president of the United States and also being mentioned for the presidency.

Even Dull Studies Interesting When Made Part of Contests

The curricular contests—mathematics, social science, Latin and French—which might appear to the uninitiated to be less interesting than other events at the State Teachers College this morning, attracted ninety-one entries this year. The contests were held this morning and the winners will be announced tonight.

There was no rush at the doors by individuals eager to watch these events, but the number of entries was sufficient evidence of the growing interest over the district.

Plane geometry and advanced algebra, dull as those subjects sometimes are thought, had entries from twenty-nine schools.

The mathematics contests were under way at 10 o'clock. Plane geometry and algebra were conducted in the same room. Dorothy McCord and Verneta Moore, College students, conducted the work.

In Form of Tests.

The contest in plane geometry was given in the form of a test covering the theorems and constructions of a standard course and originals based on these.

A medal is to be given the winner. The judges are G. H. Colbert and Katherine Helwig.

The entries in plane geometry are: Donald Reece, Savannah; Mildred Jensen, Margaret Smith, Maryville; Daisy Richey, Esther Spire, Velma White, College high school, Maryville; Paul Shell, Eula Heard, Skidmore; Lois Hess, Cora Easley, Rock Port; Frank Ross, Martinsville; Reba Ott, Helena; Allen Woodbury, Union Star; E. Katron, Fortescue; Evelyn Burr, Harmony; George Cole, Barnard; Iola Benthlen, Paul Gates, Clearmont; Lois Conklin, Gerald Pontius, Ridgeway.

The entries in advanced algebra were:

Edward Saunder, Savannah; Marjorie Hackett, Maryville; Edith Hoyt, Graham; Ovid Crouch, Boickow; Clarence Ladage, Doris Patton, Helena; Allen Woodbury, Union Star; Irvin Huffman, Donald Ray, Nishnabotna; Genevieve Gray, Clearmont.

The algebra contest was in the form of a test covering one and one-half years of high school algebra taking in elementary operations on polynomials and fractions, solution of single and simultaneous linear equations, simple factoring, solution of quadratic equations, graphs, radicals and fractional exponents.

17 Latin Entries.
There were thirteen entries in elementary Latin and four in advanced. Luther Blackwelder and Dorothy Russell, College students, assisted Mrs. C. C. Leeson in giving the work. A medal will be awarded to the winner in each department tonight.

The judges, all students of the College, are Stella Williams, Beryl Blauvelt and Florence Seat.

The test included rules of syllabification, accent, and pronunciation. The marking of syllables and accent of fifty common Latin words, and oral pronunciation as well. Fifty per cent of the grading is on the posters showing English words derived from Latin.

In the advanced Latin group the contestants were required to read selections in Latin from the first book of Caesar's Gallic War with proper pauses and accents. A knowledge of translation was expected. A booklet, showing the value of Latin in everyday life and literature, received credit in the grading.

The entries in elementary Latin were:

Ford Bradley, Frances Lauber, Virginia Lucas, Loislee Swinford, Maryville; Dorothy Mills, Mound City; Katie Knierim, Ida Beth Newlon, James Scammian, Rock Port; Joan Harvey, Adelle Harvey, Graham; Lulah Mae Lynch, Maryville; Margaret Rosenbaum, Prentice Rocks, Trenton.

The participants in advanced Latin were:

Doris Carter, Clara Ovrley, Mound City; Faye Bowden, Rock Port; Helen Doersam, Bernice Boyer, Fillmore.

Fewer in French.

The elementary French contest consisted of a competitive test, based on the grammar and the vocabulary of first year work. The advanced contest in French based on French composition and ability to read and write the language.

The entries in elementary French follows:

Nina Kime, Esther McMurry, Dorothy DeNeen, Maryville; Virginia Winn, Lathrop.

Maryville was the only entry in advanced French. The contestants were Marzella Clary, Walter Taylor and Ellen Wiles.

Miss Blanche Dow, Miss Reamona Lair and Mrs. C. C. Leeson are judging the events and the winners will be announced tonight.

The social science contests were popular this year with forty-one entries in World history, European history, American history, 1492 to 1829; American history, 1828 to 1914; and American problems. Winners in all these events will be made known tonight.

The entries follow:
European History, 1815 to 1920: Elizabeth Hull, Virginia Larmer, Maryville; Lois Schiller, Skidmore; Nellie Donaldson, Barnard.

World History: Helen Kelley, Laura Jean Murdoch, Maryville; Eula Breazle, Wilma Silence, Rock Port; Margaret Scott, Eleanor Baldwin, Martinsville; Zetah Kelley, Burton Pride, Harmony; Lois Cocklin, Ridgeway.

Attractive Frocks Displayed by Girls in Clothing Contest

Thirteen girls appeared in a style show held in the rooms of the home economics department at the State Teachers College this morning. Well-tailored linen suits, dainty prints and frocks of Peter Pan were displayed by the makers. It was a part of the clothing contests for Northwest Missouri high schools.

All of the models were "popular." Proving that it's not the expense of a dress that counts, one of the most popular models was displayed by Virginia Doniphan, Excelsior Springs. It was made of Pamico cloth, and the materials cost $2.15. A hat to match set off the dress.

The Maryville models were especially praised, as were two from Skidmore. The girls in the contests and the cost of the dress which each made are given here (time is counted at 35 cents an hour):

CLASS A.
Maryville: Virginia Larmer, linen suit, time, $10.50, material $3; Mary Donna Malotte, pink linen suit, time $10.50, materials, $7.35.

1928 CROWD IS LARGEST

band and orchestra come arrayed in new uniforms, and are those boys and girls proud? Well—

The uniforms include scarlet duvetyn capes, Medina style, lined with satin (not sateen—the girls wanted that pointed out), with the monogram "M. C. H. S." on the inside, to be revealed when the young musicians toss their capes over their shoulders—sort of carelessly, but oh so carefully.

White caps complete the uniform for the band, while "new" haircuts and bobs are allowed to show in the orchestra.

The director will be all in white, including cap.

One of the members of both band and orchestra is Mr. Thomure's son, Louis Glenwood, age 11. He handles both flute and piccolo.

Rivalry Keen in Class B.
In Class B orchestra, competition is less keen, although perhaps less spectacular than with the larger groups.

New Hampton, winner last year, is back. So is Edgerton, another school always a strong contender. Then Nodaway county has its own favorites in the excellent organizations from Burlington Junction and Ravenwood.

In the vocal events and in piano, violin and cornet contests, the competition is "wide open," without division by classes. Maryville was the only county entry in boys' glee club, but both Harmony and Maryville are entered in girls' glee club. Maryville again is the only Nodaway county entry in boys' quartet. There was no contest this year for girls' quartets, the College officials holding their voices better suited for glee club than for quartet work.

Contest Notes

Miss Genevieve Todd, who is teaching home economics at Westboro, Mo., is here with two contestants. She has been re-elected to teach there again next year. She was graduated from the State Teachers College last year.

Clarence Bush, who was graduated from the College last year, is here with a contestant in oratory from Winston, Mo., where Mr. Bush is teaching. Bush intends to go to the University of Missouri next year to work on his master's degree.

Mrs. Harry Todd, Mrs. H. W. Kramer and Mrs. J. H. Knox were among the Maryville women attending the contests this morning.

H. L. Dennis, teacher of industrial arts at Matland, stopped in M. E. Seelman's office this morning.

W. H. McDonald, superintendent of Trenton Junior College, accompanied a large delegation to Maryville.

Miss Ruth Hughes of Maryville, commercial teacher in Chillicothe high school, will arrive in Maryville tonight with a group of contestants. Miss Hughes has been re-elected to teach in Chillicothe next year at an increase in salary. She is only 20 years old and is a graduate of the State Teachers College.

Miss Carrie Hopkins and Miss Katherine Helwig, who have been in charge of placing the contest visitors, worked from 8 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. yesterday.

At midnight last night Miss Hopkins was called out to locate places for the Princeton contestants. Because it looked like rain, it was decided to have the Princeton group arrive last night. They had been expected today.

Miss Viola Barber, home economics teacher, Mound City, was greeting old friends today.

Miss Marie Bluel, secretary in M. E. Seelman's office, is, as usual during contests, rushed to death. She says that she has even been dreaming about contests the past few weeks.

The Mound City entries in all events number eighty-one, but this is only a starter for the delegation that will be here tonight to cheer for the actual contestants, the advance contingent declared this morning. Estimates on the number of townspeople who are coming ranged from two hundred to "half the town."

"These contests, as they are handled by the College, are a great incentive in our music work," said L. P. Thomure, music supervisor in the Mound City schools. "They arouse interest as nothing else could do. When we win, our people are proud of us, and if we are defeated, we still have lost nothing, because the students have gained by their efforts. We try to teach sportsmanship along with music."

Among the out-of-town school superintendents seen walking up and down the College halls this morning were J. M. Broadbent, Martinsville; W. H. McDonald, Trenton; P. E. Patrick, Bethany; S. W. Skelton, New Hampton; Ed Adams, Barnard.

Miss Irma Bray of the Horner Institute at Kansas City, who judged one group of the declamation contests, said: "It was one of the finest contests I have ever heard for high school talent. Each contestant showed unusual ability."

Charles J. Buhler Enjoying Trip East

Charles J. Buhler of Maryville who is visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Buhler, in Philadelphia, writes there has been three days of rain there, "so old Missouri don't have all the bad weather." Mr. Buhler was in New York City on Saturday and Sunday and attended the Ringling Bros. circus at Madison Square Garden.

Mr. Buhler says he is enjoying his trip very much, "but I don't know how long I will be able to stand it."

Mrs. Frank W. Buhler has been appointed a member of the committee on "Orphans' Day at the Circus" to be held at Philadelphia on May 7 when Ringling Bros. and Barnum-Bailey's circus will show. Over ten thousand orphans are expected to attend the show free and each one will be given a bag of goodies, peanuts and lollipops.

Although the contests in declamation, oration and extemporaneous speaking have lost their featured place on the night programs of the annual three-day high school carnival now in progress at the State Teachers College, apparently they have lost none of their interest for the competing schools.

The usual run of popular oratorical selections were given, including "The New South," "The Call to Arms," Ingersoll's "A Vision of War," a famous Bryan speech and several selections on the subject of the Constitution.

Among the declamation numbers were "Madame Butterfly," "Buddy and Waffles," "The Little Rebel," "Christmas Chimes," "Her First Appearance," "Prince Hogboon's Funeral," and others.

The declamation contest was judged by Miss Irma Bray and Paul Campbell of the Horner Institute at Kansas City.

Misses Mary Fields and Hazel Hawkins, college students, assisted in declamation.

What Nodaway County Churches Are Doing

THE MILLIONAIRE PAUPER

Comment on the Uniform International Series for April 29, 1928. Read Mark 10.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

A few days ago, talking with a distinguished man who has known much of public life, I got quite a kick out of his viewpoint, although it was a little pessimistic. He said the world, meaning the United States, was in a state of ferment. That the people had become money mad and power mad and failed to see the real things of life. He evidenced the political life of our country, the lack of real issues in either political party, the graft, the insincerity of the people in public life and the fact that we had forgotten the ideals which moved the men who made this country, who wrote our constitution. To sum up his idea I got this, that the people were money mad and did not care how they got wealth and the country could go hang. It made me think of this line from Emerson "The worst thing about money is that it so often costs so much."

It is not my purpose to analyze or argue on this subject but to parallel. When Jesus was living and teaching he met exactly the same situation. There were only two classes in Palestine, the rich and the poor. Politically the Romans held the country under tribute, the aristocratic and wealthy Jews ruled the country and misery and want and poverty and beggars and the sick thronged the streets in their misery. The country was in a ferment.

One day, it happened just four days before he was crucified, Jesus was walking about with his disciples when a rich young man ran to him and knelt at his feet. This in itself was extraordinary because rich people never ran in that country and time. They proceeded with dignity and decorum. The young man must have been excited. He was of the hereditary, wealthy, aristocratic class. He had become interested in the teachings of Jesus and was troubled by some of the sayings of the Master. For instance, the Master had often decried riches as something which cost much more than they were worth. Like a great many of us today the young man wanted to have his cake and eat it too.

He was evidently disturbed about the future. His question was "What shall I do to be saved?" This was rather an extraordinary young man. He had kept the laws of Moses from his youth up. Among us he would have been one baptized in infancy, brought up in Sunday school and a worker in the Y. M. C. A. Jesus loved him for he was a man of worth. Tradition has it that this young man afterward followed Jesus and became a useful Christian worker, but we do not know that this is true.

Jesus told the young man to get rid of his money and get some useful interest with which to occupy his time. It was too much for the hero of the story. He could not see anything above the dollar mark.

A great many have argued about riches, pro and con. Those of us who have not riches are rather scornful of those who have. We, of course, would use money if we had it to a much better advantage. I am not disturbed by the saying that it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter heaven. I know that this was the Oriental way of speaking, a manner of emphasis. Riches will not be the thing that keeps me out of heaven. I am quite sure of that, and I do not think that the mere owning of much money and property by any means prevents one from being Christian and worthy of the name. I am quite sure that Jesus meant to tell this young man that so long as his wealth occupied his every moment of thought and controlled his dreams it left no room for the doing of those things in life which are given us for usefulness. The young man was a millionaire pauper. I have seen many of them in this country. I feel very sorry for the man who has nothing but money. It seems to me that his soul shrivels, his life dries up and he cumbers the earth.

When you say a man is worth ten millions of dollars you are wrong. He is not worth any such sum or any part of that sum. He has simply collected to himself ten million dollars from the resources of the community in which he lived.

A lot of men are always ready with an alibi to explain why they do not belong to some church and help maintain the Christian institutions which means so much to civilization. One such said to me "I am just as good a Christian as you. My religion is to treat everybody right, tell the truth and pay my debts. That is more than a lot of you church members do."

Of course I had to admit his last

THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP.

Lesson Text.—Mark 10:17-27; 12:41-51.

17. And he was going forth into the way, there ran one to him, and knelt to him, and asked him, Good Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?

18. And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good save one, even God.

19. Thou knowest the commandments. Do not kill. Do not commit adultery. Do not steal. Do not bear false witness. Do not defraud. Honor thy father and mother.

20. And he said unto him, Teacher, all these things have I observed from my youth.

21. And Jesus looking upon him loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest, go, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come follow me.

22. But his countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful, for he was one that had great possessions.

23. And Jesus looked round about, and said unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

24. And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God!

25. It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26. And they were astonished exceedingly, saying unto him, Then who can be saved?

27. Jesus looking upon them saith, With men it is impossible, but not with God; for all things are possible with God.

12:41. And he sat down over against the treasury, and beheld how the multitude cast money into the treasury; and many that were rich cast in much.

42. And there came a poor widow, and she cast in two mites, which make a farthing.

43. And he called unto him his disciples, and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, This poor widow cast in more than all they that are casting into the treasury.

44. For they all did cast in of their superfluity; but she of her want did cast in all that she had even all her living.

statement. This was exactly the defense the rich young man gave to Jesus. The Jews were sticklers for law. I knew a man once who robbed everybody he came in contact with but always kept out of reach of the law. A Jewish Rabbi said to have called to his death bed an assistant and asked for the book of the law. "I want to find," he said, "if there is any law which I have not kept." The young man of the story had kept all the laws from his youth up.

Laws never yet made men righteous. The courts interpret and construe the laws but no judge will claim that he always administers justice. The courts are organized to interpret and apply the written laws.

My friend, who is restless under present day conditions, under the money mad times through which we are passing, states conditions just about as they were when Jesus began to teach.

The teachings of Jesus were intended to meet just those conditions. He attacked the problem from an entirely different angle.

If we might apply those teachings now, if we might substitute for the ferment of unrest, of graft, of selfishness, a ferment for service, a ferment of unselfishness and make it fashionable, we might find a cure for our troubles.

Just now the ultra smart, the rich, seem to think it is a great adventure to break the laws. I do not think the young people are any worse today than they were when I was young, but they adventure into forbidden things because of the thrill of adventure. They want to get a kick out of life.

If for this shady method of getting fun out of living we might make an adventure out of our relations with those about us, an adventure out of unselfish giving of ourselves for those we love, we would get an added kick out of the adventure of helping those we do not especially love, but who are a part of our ferment.

I feel sorry for the millionaire pauper wherever he is found. All millionaires are not paupers. I have no quarrel with men who have money. It gives them so much greater opportunities for service. Yet I do believe that many a useful and fine life has been ruined and come to naught because of money.

This is what Jesus tried to tell the young millionaire pauper who came to him with the eternal question: "What shall I do to be saved?" I hope the legend that the young man gave away his money and worked for a living and did a fine life of service is true.

RELIGIOUS LEADER

Miss Audrey Linthicum, a graduate of the Maryville high school, now a junior at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, is the new president of the Nodaway County Young People's Council. She was elected at the annual meeting held in Graham two weeks ago.

Miss Linthicum is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Linthicum, southwest of Maryville.

She is active in Sunday school and church work. Her membership is in Swan Chapel.

This is the first presidential honor to come to Miss Linthicum and she carries the honor of heading both the girls' and boys' council whereas in former years there were two presidents.

Miss Linthicum was president of the Girl Reserve organization of the Maryville high school; president of the Christian Endeavor; secretary of the high school History Club; an officer in 4-H Club work; was president last year of the southwest district of the County Sunday School Council and has attended county conference five times.

the weirdness and isolation of the inhabitants of Land's End, in "Will O' the Wisp."

Particularly deserving of mention were those who played the roles of the Will O' the Wisp and of the old woman, the latter played by Ruth Hamilton, sister of Robert Hamilton, a graduate of the State Teachers College in 1926, and a star in College dramatics.

The cast from Maryville high school entered the contest with a great handicap making their triumph all the more marked. The costumes which had been ordered from Chicago failed to arrive. Undaunted, the students improvised costumes of the period of Kitty Clive and Harvey Walpole and, with a beautiful background of cloth of gold, gave an excellent interpretation of "Ashes of Roses." The leading part of Kitty Clive, played by Mildred Sandison, was especially worthy of commendation.

The judge, Miss Johnson, is a member of the faculty of voice of the Horner Institute of Fine Arts, Kansas City.

The Maryville cast included Ford Bradley, Arthur Brewer, Reba Butler, Mildred Sandison and Doris Snodgrass.

The Hamilton cast: Grace Kime, Reid Carr, Dorothy Mae McQuillan, Mary E. Daley, Marie Neal, Allene Riddle, Lucile Mitchell, Mildred Otis, Helen Kauer, Shirley Atwell and Lilly-Lindley.

The Trenton cast: Virginia Young, Ruth Hamilton, Helen Thompson, Linda Gibson and Victor Ellis.

CHINESE ASK OWN CHURCH

QUESTION TO COME UP AT METHODIST CONFERENCE.

WILL SET PRECEDENT

Other Branches of Denomination in Foreign Lands May Follow With Home Rule Demands.

Kansas City, Mo., April 27.—One of the vital questions to come before the general quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church here in May is whether to separate the Methodist church of China from the international organization of Methodism and allow China to select its own native bishops to fill positions now held by American bishops.

The problem is a perplexing one to bishops of the church now in session at Excelsior Springs and they admit it has far-reaching ramifications. None were willing to hazard a guess on the probable action of the general conference when it convenes in Kansas City Tuesday.

At present foreign branches of the Methodist church look to the general conference in America for guidance and advice in affairs of the church. If China is permitted to become a separate entity, a self-governing and independent organization, retaining only its organic relationship to Methodism in America and elsewhere, church leaders believe the secession movement will become general in all foreign lands.

To Affect Others.

The Kansas City conference has been called upon to decide the matter solely for China, but, in effect, its decision will set a precedent which is eagerly awaited by branches of the church in India, Japan, Mexico, Africa, Europe and other lands where rumblings of home rule have been heard in the past.

The Chinese recommendations were forthcoming after a conference among native Chinese church workers, called to learn their exact wishes on policy in church methods and organization. They voted to ask the Kansas City conference to transfer to the Eastern Asia conference the power to elect a Chinese bishop or bishops for China. The Eastern Asia central conference includes the annual conferences in China, Japan and Korea.

Other changes sought by the Chinese include gradual elimination of American bishops now serving in that country and transfer to Chinese conferences all properties in China now held in the name of the mission which is an American body.

Involves 38 Counties.

The far-reaching effect of the home-rule principle may be seen in the fact that the Methodist Episcopal church has representatives at work in thirty-eight counties of the world. Should the Chinese movement culminate in home-rule by churches in each country, then the general conference would come to represent only the governing body of churches in the United States alone.

What action may be taken on the recommendation from the Chinese conference can only be speculated upon. It is known, however, that church leaders have considered the problem before and this may have influenced the Chinese at their exclusive native conference into urging self-government at this time.

China's ability to carry on the church work under home-rule also is a matter to be considered, according to church leaders. They point to the fact that American missionaries and American funds would be needed under home rule the same as now.

To meet this argument China recommends that the board of foreign missions continue its support of churches in that country but also that each individual church in China increase its own supporting funds by 10 per cent.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP

By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

"What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" asked he. "Knowest thou the commandments?" Christ questioned. "I have obeyed them since youth," the ruler answered.

"One thing thou lackest" Christ declared. "Go! Sell whatever thou hast. Give to the poor. Thou shalt have treasure in heaven. Come and follow me."

But the young ruler went sorrowfully away. "How hard it is for them that trust in riches to enter the kingdom," Christ exclaimed. "It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

On the last day of his public teaching in Jerusalem, Christ saw a poor widow cast two mites into the money boxes of the temple. "This poor woman gave more than all who are casting into the treasury," he told his disciples. "For they cast in of their superfluity, but she cast all she had even her living."

GIRL ALONE

ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED SALLY FORD is left at the state orphanage when she is four by a woman who says she is the mother, but who never returns. At 16 Sally shows a genius for acting which sets her apart from the other girls in the orphanage. She is "farmed out" for the summer to CLEM CARSON, a farmer.

She meets DAVID NASH, a handsome young student who is working on the farm during the summer. PEARL, Clem's daughter, hates Sally because David is plainly fond of the little orphan and determined to make Pearl and her crowd accept Sally as their equal.

One Sunday morning Sally is left alone in the kitchen while the Carson family goes to church. David sits on the back porch, book in hand, studying. They are surprised when Pearl returns suddenly from church and accuses Sally of having stolen her diamond pin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII.

Sally stared at Pearl, color draining out of her cheeks and out of her sapphire eyes, until she was a pale shadow of the girl who had been glowing and sparkling under the sun of David's affectionate interest.

"I haven't seen your diamond bar-pin, Pearl," she said at last. "Honest, I haven't!"

"You're lying! I saw you stoop and pick something up in front of the sofa last night. I was crazy not to think of my bar-pin then, but I remembered all right this morning, when it was gone off this dress, the same dress I was wearing last night. See, David!" she appealed shrilly to the boy, who was looking at her with narrowed, level eyes. "It was pinned right here! You can see where it was stuck in! Look!"

David said nothing, but a slow, odd smile curled his lips without reaching those level, narrowed eyes of his.

"What are you looking at me like that for?" Pearl screamed. "I won't have you looking at me like that! Stop it!"

Slowly, his eyes not leaving Pearl's face for a moment, David thrust his right hand into his pocket. When he withdrew it, something lay on his palm—a narrow bar of filigreed white gold set with a small, square-cut diamond. Still without speaking, he extended his hand slowly toward Pearl, but she drew back, here eyes popping with surprise and—yes, Sally was sure of it—fear.

"Where did you get that?" she gasped.

"Do you really want me to tell you?" David spoke at last, his voice queer and hard.

"No!" Pearl shuddered. "No! Does she—does she know?"

"No, she was telling the truth when she said that she hadn't seen the pin," David answered, flipping the pin contemptuously to the kitchen table. "But next time I think you'd better put it away in your own room. And Pearl, you really must try to overcome this absentmindedness of yours. It may get you into trouble sometime."

Pearl shivered, seemed to shrink visibly under her fussy pink georgette dress.

"Oh!" she wailed suddenly, her face crumpling up in a spasm of weeping. "You'll hate me now. And you used to like me, before she came! You—oh, I hate you! Quit looking at me like that!"

"Hate you better go back to church?" David suggested mildly. "Tell your mother you found your pin just where you left it," that contemptuous smile deepening on his lips.

"You won't tell Papa, will you?" Pearl whimpered, as she turned toward the door. "And you won't tell—her?" She could not bear to utter Sally's name.

"No, I won't tell," David assured her. "But I'm sure you'll try to make up to Sally for having been mistaken about the pin."

"She's all you think of!" Pearl cried, then, sobbing wildly, she ran out the kitchen door.

"Guess I'd better not bother you any longer, or they'll be blaming me if dinner is late," David said casually, but he paused to pat the little hand that was clutching the table.

Sally was so puzzled by the strangeness of the scene she had witnessed, so tormented by brief glimpses of something near the truth, so weak from reaction, so stirred by gratitude to David, that she was making poor headway with dinner when Clem Carson, who had not gone to church, came in from the barns, dressed in overalls in defiance of the day.

"Got a sick yearlin' out there," he grumbled. "A blue-ribbon heifer calf that Dave's grandpa persuaded me to buy. I don't believe in this blue-ribbon stock. Always delectable—got to be nursed like a baby. I give her a whooping dose of castor oil and she slobbered all over me."

He took the big black iron teakettle from the stove and filled the granite wash basin half full of the steaming water. As he lathered his hands, until festoons of soap bubbles hung from them, he cocked an appraising eye at Sally, who was busily rolling pie crust on a yellow pine board.

"Dave been hanging around the kitchen this morning, ain't he?"

Sally's hands tightened on the rolling pin and her eyes fluttered guiltily as she answered, "Yes, sir."

"Better not encourage him, if you know which side your bread's buttered on," the farmer advised laconically. "I reckon you know by this time that Pearl's picked him out and that things son shouted from the kitchen door, is just about settled between 'em. Fine match, too. He'll own his granddad's place some day—next farm to this one, and the young folks will be mighty well fixed. I reckon Dave's pretty much like any other young whippersnapper—ready to cock an eye at any pretty girl that comes along, before he settles down, but it don't mean anything. Understand?"

"Yes, sir," Sally murmured.

"I reckon any fool could see that Pearl's mighty near the apple of my eye," Carson went on, as he dried his hands vigorously on the Sunday-fresh roller towel. "And if she took a notion that maybe some other girl from the orphanage would suit us better, why I don't know as I could do anything else but take you back. And I'd hate that!"

You're a nice, pretty little thing, real handy in the kitchen, but, yes, sir, I'd have to tell the matron that you just didn't suit. Well, I got to get back to that yearlin'."

Somehow Sally managed to finish cooking the big Sunday dinner before the family returned from church. Out of deference for the day she decided to change from her faded gingham to her white dress before serving dinner. Surely she had a right to look decent! Clem Carson couldn't construe her humble "dressing up" as a bid for David's attention.

In her little garret room she scrubbed her face and hands, pinned the heavy braid of soft black hair about her head, and then reached under her cot bed for her small bundle of clothes, in which was rolled her only pair of fine-ribbed white stockings. As she drew out the bundle she discovered immediately that other hands than her own had touched it; the stockings had been unrolled and then re-rolled clumsily, not at all in her own neat fashion. Then suddenly full comprehension came to her. The pieces of the puzzle settled miraculously into shape.

It was here, in this bundle, that David had found the bar-pin. Somehow he had seen Pearl slip into the room that morning, had guessed that her secret visit boded no good for Sally; had spied on her, and then later had retrieved the bar-pin from the bundle in which Pearl had hidden it.

If David had not seen—But she could not go on with the thought. Trembling so that her teeth chattered she dressed herself as decently as her orphanage wardrobe permitted, and then went downstairs to "dish up" the dinner she had prepared.

Immediately after dinner David went across fields to call on his grandfather, a grouchy, sick old man who almost hated the boy because he would soon own the lands which he himself had loved so passionately. He did not return for supper, and at breakfast on Monday there was no time for more than a smile and a cheerful "Good morning," which Sally, with Clem Carson's eyes upon her, hardly dared return.

Sally wondered if David had been warned, too, for as the days passed she seldom saw him alone for as much as a minute. Perhaps he was being careful for her sake, suspecting Carson's antagonism, or perhaps, in spite of the shameful trick in which he had caught her, he really cared for Pearl. Evenings he sat for a short time in the living room or on the front porch, Pearl beside him, chatting animatedly; but he was always in his room studying by 10 o'clock, a blessed fact which made her own isolation in her little garret room more easy to bear.

On Thursday morning at 10 o'clock David appeared at the kitchen door, an axe in his hands.

"Will you turn the grindstone for me while I sharpen this axe blade, Sally?" he asked casually, but his eyes gave her a deep, significant look that made her heart flutter.

Mrs. Carson, standing over her bubbling preserving kettles, grunted an assent, and Sally flew out of the kitchen to join him.

The grindstone, a huge, heavy stone wheel turned by a pedal arrangement, was set up near the first of the great red barns. While Sally poured water at intervals upon the stone, David held the blade against it, and under cover of the whirring grating noise he talked to her in a low voice.

"Everything all right, Sally?"

"Fine!" she faltered. "I get awful tired, but there's lots to eat—such good things to eat—and Pearl's given me some dresses that are nicer than any I ever had before, except they're too big for me."

"Is't she fat?" David grinned at her, and she was reminded again how young he was, although he seemed so very grown-up to her. "She wouldn't be so fat if she worked a tenth as hard as you do."

"I don't mind," Sally protested, her eyes misting with tears at his thoughtfulness for her. "I've got to earn my board and keep. Besides, there's such an awful lot to be done, with the preserving and the canning and the cooking and everything. Mrs. Carson works even harder than I do."

David's eyes flashed with indignation and a suspicion of contempt for the meek little girl opposite him. "You're earning five times as much as your board and room and a few old clothes that Pearl doesn't want are worth. It makes me so mad—"

"Sal-lee! Ain't that axe ground yet?" Time to start dinner! I can't leave this picnic! I'm making," Mrs. Carson's voice came from the kitchen door,

U. S. PAT. OFF. WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

"Wait, Sally," David commanded. "Wouldn't you like to take a walk with me after supper tonight? I'll help you with the dishes. You never get out of the house, except to the garden. You haven't even seen the fields yet. I'd like to show you around. The moon's full tonight."

"Oh, I can't!" Sally gasped with the pain of refusal. "Pearl—Mr. Carson—"

"I want you to come," David said steadily, his eyes commanding her.

"All right," Sally promised recklessly, her cheeks pink with excitement, her eyes soft and velvety, like dark blue pianos.

Braving the wrath of Carson, Sally goes to meet David. In the next chapter.

Most of Oats Allowed to Stand—Mrs. Street to Kansas—Fakes Children United.

PICKERING—The weather for the past week has been fine for field work, but too cool and dry for growth of grain or grass.

A few fields of oats have been reseeded, but the greater portion of the early seeding will be allowed to stand.

Several farmers have begun planting corn this week and a large portion of the ground intended for corn has been plowed or listed or disced and is now ready for planting.

Pastures are growing very slowly on account of the cool, dry weather.

The Union township road grader is at work this week near the White Oak cemetery. Everett Florea is operating the tractor and J. D. McGinness handling the grader.

Mrs. C. E. Hull and daughter, Ethel Mary, spent last Saturday and Sunday at the home of a brother of Mr. Hull at Council Bluffs, Ia., and returned home Sunday evening.

Miss Josie Sadler and her niece, Jean Swinford, spent last Sunday at the home of H. J. Sadler, a brother of the former, in St. Joseph.

Mrs. Howard Null, a teacher in the Guilford school, spent last Saturday and Sunday here with Mr. Null.

Mrs. Lois Baldock Street, one of the teachers in Pickering high school, spent last Saturday and Sunday with her husband, Fred Street, at Harveyville, Kansas, where he is engaged in the lumber business. While there Mrs. Street contracted to teach the fifth and sixth grades of the Harveyville school next year. She returned to her work here Sunday evening.

GIRL'S TRACK RECORDS FALL

75-YARD MARK IS FIRST TO BE BETTERED.

WESTBORO GIRL STAR

Kimbel Wins Both Dashes as Northwest Missouri Meet Gets Under Way.—Crowd Small.

With four events run off out of nine, Westboro was leading the girls' track meet at the College field this afternoon, held in conjunction with the 19th annual Northwest Missouri high school contests and athletic events.

Evelyn Kimbel of Westboro had won three firsts, in the 60-yard dash, 75-yard dash and 75-yard low hurdles. The 75-yard dash was a new event, shortened from 85 yards last year.

She set a new record in the 75-yard dash and made 10 seconds flat in the 75-yard hurdles. With only the preliminaries run off in broad jump, she had broken the record, leaping 15 feet 2 1/2 inches.

Kimbel was high point winner at this time in the event, with 15. O'Connor of Plattsburg was second with 9. Mowry, who broke the record in the baseball throw had 5 points; Lee of Chillicothe 3. Thacker of Westboro, 2; Herald of Coffey, 4; Edmonston of Plattsburg 2; Triplett of Chillicothe, 2; Bayse of Osborn, 1; and Hall of Savannah, 1.

A bright sun and strong wind from the north greeted girl athletes of eighteen high schools of Northwest Missouri, competing this afternoon in the sixth annual girls track meet at the State Teachers College, Paul R. Jones, K. U., was starter.

Kimbel broke the first record of the afternoon when she lowered the mark in the 75 yard dash. She came in first in this event in 9 seconds flat. The former record was made by Hale of Eagleville, 9 1-5 seconds in 1925.

Kimbel already had won the first event of the afternoon, taking the 60 yard dash in a field of seven finishing two yards ahead of O'Connor of Plattsburg, who came in second.

Despite the excellent day for the meet only a small crowd was on hand to give the girl athletes a hand as they came down to the finish.

60-yard dash: Kimbel, Westboro, first; O'Connor, Plattsburg, second; Edmonston, Plattsburg, third; Triplett, Chillicothe, fourth. Time 7.5 seconds.

Record, Hale, Eagleville, 7 2-5 seconds, 1925.

75-yard dash. Kimbel, Westboro first; O'Connor, Plattsburg, second; Herald, Coffey, third; Triplett, Chillicothe, fourth. Time, 9 seconds flat, new record.

Former record, Hale, Eagleville, 9 1-5 seconds, 1925.

To Complete No. 71 Grading by September

Work on Last Remaining Link, Connecting at Savannah, to Begin First of Week.

The grading and bridging of highway No. 71, north and west of Savannah, will be completed sometime during September, according to the terms of the contract between the State Highway Commission and W. A. Abrams of Des Moines, Ia., who had the low bid on this road project at a recent letting held in Jefferson City.

This project extends a distance of 1.944 miles. The price was $30,000, which includes the overhead bridge over the Burlington railroad, which is to cost about $9,000.

Mr. Abrams has sub-let the grading work to the Morris & Company grading crew of Oregon, who have had the road project on No. 18, Maryville to Ravenwood.

With this project under way, all of highway No. 71 from Savannah to the end of the pavement ten miles south of Maryville is contracted for. Kolterman and Koonst of Omaha, who have the contract for the other projects on No. 71, have been working for several weeks on the grading and bridging of this new road and are making good progress with their grading, much work also has been done on several of the concrete culverts.

The Savannah Reporter says Chief Engineer McGinnis, with a crew of highway engineers, are setting stakes this week and will have the work completed within a few days for the 1.944 miles. The bridge over the Burlington is to be 120 feet. The east side will be on the Ed Miller land and the west side on the Charles E. Graff property and will be about a thousand feet south of the present crossing over the Burlington at the Graff corner.

Part of the Abrams construction equipment arrived yesterday and he will probably begin work the first of the week.

The new road will extend about a fourth of a mile straight north along the west side of the fair grounds in Savannah, to Bennett Avenue, then west along Bennett Avenue, Lincoln street, and Katherine street, intersecting the present Highway 71 on Katherine street, crossing the Burlington switch and continuing northwest diagonally through the north end of several tracts of land.

Ed Howe used to say that the only thing an editor could attack with impunity was the man-eating shark. Now Van Campen Heilner returns from the Bahamas and says he swam among man-eating sharks all day long and they didn't touch him. Guess Ed will have to take in his sails a little.
